Consent to Treatment Form

When you give your permission to have chiropractic spinal adjustments and physical medicine modalities performed you and your guardian should understand the most common risks and hazards of these procedures. These are all rather infrequent but may occur:

1. Post treatment discomfort, or soreness or stiffness, which may persist 12 to 24 hours after treatment.
2. Transient lightheadedness or dizziness following chiropractic adjustments of the neck. Please alert Dr. McKinnon should this reaction occur.
3. Aggravation of acute intervertebral disc bulge or herniation. Please be advised that Dr. McKinnon will make reasonable efforts to determine the possibility of an underlying disc problem and modify your treatment recommendations accordingly.
4. Spontaneous vertebral body or rib fracture in an osteoporotic patient. Please be advised that Dr. McKinnon will make every reasonable effort to diagnose this pre-existing condition and modify your treatment recommendations accordingly.
5. Acute onset of muscle spasms alongside the spine in the area being treated or in an adjacent area. These muscle spasm reactions are commonly present, even before treatment, in the acute patient and every effort will be made to reduce them prior to spinal adjustments.

I understand that no guarantee has been made and that the procedures may not cure my condition.

PATIENT CASE HISTORY

The patient is a 45-year-old male with a long history of hypertension and diabetes mellitus. He was first diagnosed with hypertension at the age of 30 and has been on antihypertensive therapy ever since. His diabetes was diagnosed 10 years ago and is currently managed with insulin therapy.

He presented to the clinic today with a chief complaint of increasing fatigue and weakness over the past several weeks. He reports that he has lost approximately 10 pounds (4.5 kg) in the last 3 months, which is a significant weight loss for him. He also notes that he has been experiencing frequent urination, particularly at night, and increased thirst.

In addition to these symptoms, he has noticed some blurred vision and has been feeling more irritable and anxious lately. He denies any chest pain, shortness of breath, or changes in bowel or bladder habits. He has no history of smoking or alcohol consumption.

His medical history is significant for hypertension, diabetes mellitus, and hyperlipidemia. He is currently taking lisinopril for his blood pressure, insulin glargine and insulin lispro for his diabetes, and atorvastatin for his cholesterol. He has no known drug allergies.

The physical examination is unremarkable. He is well-developed and appears somewhat thin. His vital signs are stable. There is no tachycardia or tachypnea. The lungs are clear to auscultation. The heart rate is regular and within normal limits. The abdomen is soft and non-tender, with no palpable masses or organomegaly.

Laboratory investigations were performed, including a complete blood count (CBC), comprehensive metabolic panel (CMP), and hemoglobin A1c. The CBC shows a normal white blood cell count and hemoglobin level. The CMP reveals a significantly elevated glucose level and a low potassium level. The hemoglobin A1c is also elevated, indicating poor glycemic control.

Based on the clinical presentation and laboratory findings, the most likely diagnosis is a complication of diabetes mellitus, specifically hyperosmolar hyperglycemic state (HHS) with associated hypokalemia. The weight loss and polyuria are also consistent with uncontrolled diabetes.

The patient was admitted to the hospital for further evaluation and management. The primary goals of treatment are to correct the hyperglycemia and hypokalemia. Insulin therapy was initiated, and potassium was replaced. The patient's symptoms improved significantly over the first 24 hours of treatment.

The patient was discharged on the third day of hospitalization. He was advised to continue with his current medications and to monitor his blood glucose levels closely. He was also counseled on the importance of maintaining a healthy diet and regular physical activity to prevent future complications.
